OSCAR ROMERO (1917-1980): In his homily on March 23, 1980 the day before he was murdered, Bishop Oscar Romero addressed the Salvadoran military directly: Brothers, we are part of the same people. You are killing your own brother and sister peasants and when you are faced with an order to kill given by a man, the law of God must prevail; the law that says: Thou shalt not kill. No soldier is obliged to obey and order against the law of God. No one has to obey an immoral law. It is time that you recover your consciences.... In the name of God then and in the name of this suffering people whose laments rise up to heaven each day more tumultuously, I plead with you, I pray you, I order you, in the name of God: Stop the repression! The next day, following his sermon, a US supported government hit squad shot him through his heart as he stood at the altar. Only a few weeks earlier, Romero had said: "I have often been threatened with death. I must tell you, as a Christian, I do not believe in death without resurrection. If I am killed, I shall arise in the Salvadoran people. I say so without boasting, with the greatest humility... A bishop will die, but God's church, which is the people, will never perish." Romero's epitaph reads "To be of one mind and heart with the Church." These words were his episcopal motto, his promise to share the suffering and strength of the people he served.
